

June 3, 2018 Clarity Radio Broadcast
“Illogical Behaviour; Abortion; Skin Cancer; Message to Canadian MPs”

(Intro: “Live is Life” by Opus)

That’s right: life is live. And we are live. Wow! My name is Bryan. You’re listening to Clarity Radio. Of course, you know that. And it’s the 3rd of June, year 2018.

And I thought I would still be in Florida, doing a research project on our burn gel and the enzymes. But you know, I’ve been called back. We’ve got a crisis. Jasper: we got a problem! Wow.

So anyways, there’s four segments.

Segment 1: “Illogical Behaviour.”

Segment 2: Abortions. Very sensitive topic. So, I have to be very careful. And... but not really. You know, why should I be careful? I’m speaking the truth.

And Segment 3: “Skin Cancer.” Some new information that’s going to help all of us.

And Segment 4: “A New Message to Our Canadian Parliament.”

Now, I made a commitment never to do another political broadcast. And things are so out of control right now, that someone in Ottawa needs help. And right across this beautiful country, the premiers need help. Everybody needs help. And the help that you need is the infusion of some new truth. And so, we’re going to try our best to do that very correctly. And we have to be wise with the words that we use because it’s a very, very sensitive topic, the fourth segment. That’s why it’s not going to be posted afterwards. So, anyone who’s listening right now, later on, 3:30 our time roughly: you were supposed to listen to the broadcast.

(Segment 1: Illogical Behaviour)

Okay so, here we go, Segment 1: let’s get on with it. What is... There’s nine points. What is illogical behaviour? Well, you know, just for fun, I... You know, sometimes I would just observe the parking lot. And I would observe people going into their parking spot, and just sit there, and observe what happens afterwards. And one of the... my discernments was, “Is it logical for someone to, when they’re going into a parking lot... a public parking lot... to drive their car forward into the parking spot?” And the answer came back no. And so, if you understand... What typically happens is: when you’re about to drive out of that parking spot, you’re going to go in reverse and there’s usually somebody... almost always... walking behind, towards the car, towards your bumper. Just think about it. Or maybe there’s someone pulling out at the same time you are. It is not logical for you to give your power up, for you not to be able to have total control of what's going on.

So, when we think of illogical behaviour, on some level, it's not having control of something. And so, making decisions without understanding the full consequences: this is a big issue. This is illogical behaviour: people making choices but they don't understand what can happen to them or to other people, as a result of that decision.

It could be also acting out to trick another. And a lot of people who, on a continual basis... And now, there's a theme to this: Segment 1, 2, 3 and 4. There is a theme. There's a common theme. So, you need to really listen carefully. I can't say... I can't come out and say it out loud. I can't say it. It wouldn't be correct. But you have to figure out exactly: what am I trying to tell you? But I can't directly just say it.

So, acting out to trick another: this is usually connected to greed and revenge, in most cases. And those of you who know me, particularly the ones in politics: you know that I'm gifted. You've sat down with me in person; you know I'm gifted. I can discern your spirit, your soul, your light body, your father, your great-great-great grandfather, 10,000 years ago... It doesn't matter. I don't need to see any notes of history. I know. That's my gift. I know every member of your family. And they don't need to be in front of me. They could be on Mars: I still know them.

But there's a point for illogical behaviour: believing that one is... well, undeserving, that one can't be... one can't... Yes, what's the word? Forgiven. One cannot be forgiven. I mean, this is nonsense. But it's a false belief. So, you go through life thinking, "Hey, I'm going to continue with my own personal revenge, my greed because I can't be forgiven." And there's certain people around the world: they believe this. And they're looking to create some big problems for us.

The second point... Making decisions, again, going further, deeper, without fully understanding the consequences. So, illogical behaviour... okay... is having unprotected sex. So, here's the real scoop. God doesn't tell man you can't use a condom. God doesn't tell us this. But if you understand the science behind being protected, where you can have diseases be transferred from one person to the next... And never mind the actual disease states that we can't see on a yocto level, the yotocrystals, that can bring cancer and different diseases, heart disease. Not to mention that you can get pregnant, a woman. This whole concept, this belief, passed on through religion, has nothing to do with God. I mean, it's illogical to follow mainstream religion, where their policy's, "Do as I say, not as I do." It's not logical. It's not logical. It is logical to protect yourself. And it's not logical to punish yourself when you break one of the codes of mainstream religion. It's not... Because God doesn't tell you this.

So, when you hear my voice, I'm the extension of the grand spiritual council. I'm not a psychic. I would probably do as well as the weather forecasters. (laughs) "Well, there's a 50:50 chance it's going to rain." (laughs) I deal more with facts, what's really happening, and what has happened. That's my gift. And what potentially may happen, based on certain facts. But it doesn't mean that it's going to happen. Just may.

So, this illogical behaviour: it's a program. It's an entity that's on someone that causes them to behave in a certain way. Of course, a lot of people don't believe in this. But it's true. You know, I try to wrap my head around science. Those who know me, I can discern any molecule. I can discern the body very accurately. Physics: not a problem. I can discern physics very accurately. I know what's going on. Yocto level, pentaquarks. It doesn't matter. I can sit down and talk with the brightest, of the brightest, of the brightest, the most genius in science and have a very, very intelligent conversation. And both of us would walk away from that table learning something new. That's my gift. And so, I'm really, really here to help... help everyone. But we have to be aware of illogical behaviour.

So, moving onto the third point... Acting out to trick another. I mean, we talk about conscious level, conscious states. We talk about subconscious. I mean, this is easy. Textbook. This is for us to be in the comfort zone. But we don't talk about those light body energies that's attached to our brain, to our heart, that interacts with our DNA. We don't talk about that. Because it's not comfortable. Because we can't see it. So, because we can't see it, we say, "It doesn't exist."

So, when we're talking about greed, we're talking about revenge... You know, to trick another, it's mostly about speaking untruths. And so, anyone who continually does this: they are... they have an agenda that they need to achieve. And that agenda, for some of us to understand this and see what other people internationally are doing, would be most appalling. It would be very disturbing. But their agenda is to steal from you, from us. They slander us, others. And they're very successful right now with one significant agenda, which is economic terrorism. It's unbelievable. Speaking untruths, fake news. They steal and they slander. This is economic terrorism. But at the end of the day, it's not logical behaviour. Because, at the end of the day, nothing good becomes of it. Because it's not designed for anything good to come out of it. It's not. And it's a very, very dangerous situation.

As we move onto the fourth point... Believing that one is undeserving. I mean, there's so many people... So many people out there: they give up too easy. They give up too easy. "Geez, why doesn't anybody like me? Nobody likes me." But do you understand the real issues? Are you dealing with the correct issues? So, they inflict pain on others, only to be rejected. Because, on some level, they believe they are undeserving. They inflict pain on themselves, to get empathy from others. "Why doesn't anybody love me?"

But we need to look at the real issues that this country, the world is facing. There is no time for weakness. And the only way that we can become strong is to do away with the fake news and the lies. And pick up the issue of truth. Learn it. And teach it. And be committed behind that truth. And don't... do not deliver a wish-washy message. Be firm. And if you need to ask the people to forgive you: ask for their forgiveness. But look after the people.

So, the fifth... What really drives illogical behaviour? Again, we're dealing with greed. I mean, you can have greed. Most people think, "Well, greed is money." You can just have greed to hurt others. Power. And we give other people power by making personal oaths to them directly, loyalty statements to them directly. So, they have control over you.

Those who have been listening to me for years: you know we're in the matrix. We don't have much free will. We're here to go through our karma, a lot of us. Those who can discern: I have no karma. There is no bad karma for me to go through.

Greed for financial wealth is to... for a lot of people in powerful position... is to destroy the world. It's to destroy the world. So, you need greed for fame. And so, these individuals that come out with such illogical behaviour... You take a look at their history. Are they mostly known for doing good things? Or mostly bad things? And so, this person/persons: they want to be known as the worst. The worst. So, what is the worst possible situation, where you're in a position of power? It's World War III. This is what we have to be able to understand. By knowing the truth on a collective conscious level, we can stop it. We have to. My God, our children need to have hope. The abuse that our children go through watching the news and being discouraged: this is terrible. This has to stop.

So, the sixth... What does illogical behaviour need to be successful? What? What is it? In every case, when you've got someone committing the acts of illogical behaviour, you need someone needs to be gullible. And how? Is by the oaths. If you don't give someone your loyalty based on oaths: they can't control you. You will not be gullible. And these oaths: you may have given these oaths to someone in another incarnation. But it still comes back with you in this incarnation. That's why you never make an oath to a person, on a personal level. Because they will control you, every incarnation.

And what happens is: in order for them to be successful, they need to make other people fearful of them. And the way they do it is the oath that you made to them in another incarnation. If you break the oath, a chemical imbalance will take place in your body. And it will bring some sort of disease. That is the truth. That's why a lot of people are saying, "Why can't anything be done?" Because the ones who's made the oath, they're afraid of being punished. And this is why we do not make personal oaths to somebody.

I mean, why would you make an oath to someone? "I promise to die for you." "I promise to always look after you." "I promise to be your sacrifice." I mean, this... Many people have done this. "I promise 100% obedience to you." Never, never give this oath to another. Because the one who is seeking out the loyalty, the oath never has good intentions for you and for others.

And for this individual to be successful, they have to know that they have made you feel inferior to them. And the real oath is the oath of obedience. That's it. When you make an oath of obedience to someone: from that moment on, you are inferior to them. And they can do whatever they want to do with you in other incarnations. You never, never do this. It's not logical. Don't give your power away.

So, we're in the matrix. And so, part of the madness of this matrix that we're in is because we have given our power away to certain individuals. And we're talking, for example... Let me give you a good example. A certain powerful leader could have been the pope, in another incarnation. I mean, that's easy. I mean, so many people today have made oaths to the pope. "The one and true... only representative of God..." Blah, blah, blah, blah... You're toast, from that moment on. Because you have to do what the church dictates. You have to do it. But God, the true God doesn't say you have to do this. The true God gives us choices. We have choices. But once we've made an oath to man: that freedom has been taken away from us. And then, we are at the mercy of whatever they wish to do. And that's where we are right now. We've got a very serious situation. And that's why I'm back, from taking a break and doing other scientific topics in the fourth segment. I now have been requested. I discerned I need to get this information out today. Wow.

Okay so, let's go to the seventh point... How to shut down illogical behaviour. Well, one of the most important ways to handle illogical behaviour is: you have to be very slow to react. And as you're thinking about how you should or should not react: you should... whoever is causing the problem with you... If it's another politician, political leader: it doesn't matter who it is. Before you react, start denouncing any oaths you may have to that other party, that you deem that's giving you a illogical response to something. But you must say out loud that you denounce all oaths of obedience, of loyalty. You've got to get rid of this. Then next, what you need to do is understand the issue and get the facts.

But you will know you are free from this individual. Because what happens is, the same day that you actually denounce the oaths: 12 midnight afterwards, while you're sleeping, everything is adjusted. So, you wake up the next morning and you do not have any sort of connection to that person any more. So, that means, the same day, you should never handle the actual situation. You should wait at least till the next day and respond. But as you're doing this, it's important to build support around you. And the people that are very close to you: you should have them denounce the same type of oaths. This is how you can become stronger. This is very important. This chain of oaths: it needs to be cut. And you need to be very strong. But if you are dealing with truth: you have nothing to be concerned about.

So, the eighth point... So, what is the biggest weakness of those who continually act out illogical behaviour? What is it? It's fear that one does not respond quickly. Because when you respond too quickly, you... unknowingly, you expose your own weakness. And not only that, you give in to the person. Because you may still have an oath. So, what you got to do is just stop. Go up north. Get in a canoe. And just take it easy, by yourself. And you say, "I denounce all oaths I have to this person." Next morning, sit down and deal with the issue. But you've got to respond slowly.

Now, what's another fear that these individuals have that are illogical? Well, fear that their own weakness will be revealed. When you cut the chain of oaths, you force the one with illogical behaviour to expose their weaknesses. This is why this is so important. And one of the biggest fears they have is that they will lose. They can't stand to lose. And they lose when people get their freedom back. So, by you hanging onto oaths that you may have to other people, you are encouraging others to continue with illogical behaviour. And you may have to listen to this broadcast three times. But that's okay. But if that's what it takes: do it.

Okay, the ninth point... How to avoid illogical behaviour. Remember: there is a theme here. So, again, speak the truth. Speak the truth. Don't spin. Because here's the thing: when you don't speak the truth, you're going to create bad karma. And just like I'm connected to the spiritual council, I can discern with them: they know about me and they know everything about you. So, every time one lies, there's a record. And that record goes with you, from one incarnation to the next. And the next life experience that you have is based on what you've done, for example, in this incarnation. So, it would be wise to speak the truth, particularly if you are not speaking the truth and that truth leads to the actual destruction of this planet, World War III. My God, I don't even want to think what would happen to you. But I do know.

So, what we need to do to avoid illogical behaviour, besides getting rid of the oaths, is: don't let the left hand know what the right hand is doing. It's very, very, very important.

And the third is: don't brag. Because when we are bragging, and we are bragging that the Canadian economy is doing so well: the first thing those with illogical behaviour... the first thing they want to do is stop that bragging. And they want to bring down the Canadian economy.

We need to be very careful. We need to be wise. And... but we need to respect even those of illogical behaviour. And we have to be able to have the courage... the courage to deal with those who continually give this country and the world illogical behaviour.

So, we're going to break. That was very quick. Segment 2 is coming... Abortion: should women be allowed? Of course. So, I'm going to go deeper to explain why it's so important. And maybe there's going to be a lot of men out there that are going to change their opinion and they're going to support women. And I'm hoping that this next segment, women are going to feel much more comfortable, particularly the ones who've already had abortions, that there is something that you can do for the next incarnation to offset that abortion.

So, my name is Bryan. It is June the 8th... June the 3rd... Yes, June the 3rd. Yes, my... You know what? My eyes... The three looked like an eight. June the 3rd, year 2018. Thank you.

("Lost" by Coldplay)

(Segment 2: Abortion: Should Women Be Allowed Abortions?)

That's right: some us, we're lost. Well, my name is Bryan. And it's June the 3rd, 2018. You're listening to Clarity Radio.

I tell you, not so long ago, I was... Where was I? In Florida... a beach. And I was in less than four feet of water. And you want to talk about lost, I mean, I almost got bitten by a eight-foot grouper. And this was unbelievable. And it was one of those days where the water was very murky, 8:00 in the morning. And the day before, bad storms. And so, I was going to the beach to detox. Because that's the main reason why you go to the beach. You know, it's amazing. So many Americans: they don't go into the water. And that's an incredible way to detox your body in that salt water.

And so, I tell you, it came two feet away from me. I moved to the side. Then, what was it? About twelve or fifteen feet away from me. Then it turned around. As it turned around, I ran. And I said to my wife, "I'm coming." Twenty-five feet, I ran so quick to the shoreline. And so, I met a sheriff and I explained what happened. And he said, "Well, they do eat sharks." And then, I went to the web, you know, "Do these type of fish, do they attack man?" Of course, they do. But it would be my luck that a grouper would come after me. So, I was so upset that every day, I ate grouper. (laughs) It was very good, by the way.

So anyways, let's get back to the real topic, issue. I'm here, I'm alive. And got a very bad sunburn. I've got a video to show you. It's coming on next week. Oh my gosh, I got so burned, bad. But it was good. I had something that really helped me.

So, here we go. So, Segment 2... Abortion. Should women be allowed to have abortions?

Now again, the true God... the true God does not say woman is not to have abortions. Doesn't say that. A woman has a choice. God will give a woman choices. But of course, with everything else, there's consequences to your choice. And that's what women need to understand. But more importantly, women need to understand: why is it certain men are so determined to make sure a woman cannot have an abortion? I mean, this is the real issue. Forget... Put the scripture to the side. Why is it these men are running around and they're so determined to force a woman not to have an abortion? So, there's nine points. So, here we go.

So, number one... Why man, men should not decide on abortion laws. Well, I went very deep with my discernment. See, most men who are making a decision to stop women from having abortions: it's based on revenge. It's subconscious revenge.

So, I looked at certain people who actually are out there that support the idea of women not having abortions. And these individuals, I discerned that, when they were one, they felt rejected by their mother. They felt not being loved. And I said, "Wow. Wow." And even from that experience, the rejection from their mother, they had this subconscious belief, that eventually becomes a conscious belief, that they hate women, based on that. And what I've learned is, in every case, every man that fully, fully, in a very aggressive way says a woman should not have an abortion... It could be a priest. It could be anybody. They have hatred towards women, in every case. They felt not loved by their mother. They felt rejected.

They have anger. And I know I've discerned so many women who have had abortions. Even privately, none of them feel good after that event. They feel awful. They feel terrible. But they made the choice to go through with it. And we're going to explain why they did this later on. But man is judging a woman by denying them the freedom to choose. And they're judging them, fueled by their own subconscious hatred towards women. This is not a good situation. And this truth needs to be told to all women, worldwide. Everyone needs to know this.

So, the second point... Does man create bad karma by bringing laws against women, in reference to abortions, that prevents them from having abortions? Yes. Yes, yes, yes. So, in the last 100 years, man/politicians/clergy/parents/boyfriends/spouses... all of them, you know, parents, whoever, etc. that prevented a woman from having a abortion: they have created bad karma, by not allowing that woman to go through the abortion. So, the men are thinking, hey, they're doing something good. They're only making it worse for them. So, with their hatred towards women, they now have bad karma on top of that. And so, their hatred towards women: they force the women to go through the suffering, the suffering of having that child, which in a lot of cases, is not good. I will explain further down the road here. But they created karma over one simple issue: they did not give women freedom to make their own decision.

And you have to consider that there's an element that's usually always attached to this issue with a woman getting pregnant: and that's the man. That's the man. Now, there could be a situation where a man gets a woman pregnant and she wants to abort and the man really wants the baby. I mean, this is another issue. This is where there's a genuine... That's another situation. But that's different from what we're speaking of today. And all I do know is women suffer so badly by not being able to make the choice. And even when they do make the choice, they also... a lot of them will suffer afterwards. So, it's tough. It's a very tough situation.

And again, all women who've had abortions, even though on a conscious level, they think they're okay with the abortion: they're not. They're just blocking it. That event has simply been blocked, so they don't have to recall the event.

So, the third point... Men who do not give women the right to choose. We're talking why. What does it mean? Like, why, why, why? Let's expand. Let's go deeper. These men that we speak of, there's fear that men have of women having power over man. Because here's the situation. These men we speak of, when they were being breast fed, they didn't feel loved by their mother. Some of them weren't even breast fed. But in almost every case, the mother that they had was a dominant mother, powerful. A no-nonsense type of mother. So, there's a memory. So now, they feel rejected, not loved. Now, they have a memory, "Oh, I don't want to have a woman in my life to have power over me." Because they didn't like that feeling when they were younger. Wow.

Also, men fear that women will take away man's ability to exploit women in their own way. And that's a big issue too. So, we're dealing with a deep, deep issue that men, hey, on a collective conscious level, doesn't want the world to know this truth. But women, once they understand this truth, you can become more self-empowered, to know that the issue of the abortion issue is mostly to do with the man... men. And that's the truth. That is the truth.

So, why is abortion... going onto the fourth point... the issue so important to man, mainstream religion, etc.? See, men in power, they like women to feel unworthy. I'm talking about this type of man. Not all men. But this type of man we're speaking of. Not all. There's a lot of good men out there. And the majority of the men don't feel this way. It's just the minor populace, worldwide. And usually the ones that's in power. And usually the ones that have a very strong connection to some form of mainstream religion, whether it's a conscious level or a subconscious level, whether it's from another incarnation. These are the ones that are there, insuring that women continue to suffer.

See, women who feel unworthy... Because this whole is about suppressing women, having the women feel unworthy, so they cannot challenge authority. And this is what this is all about. And men who deny abortions have subconscious revenge towards everyone. And so, the men that we speak of, these abortion laws are not... They're not really there to protect the fetus. Now, there is a image that is presented that they are there to protect the fetus. And I agree that the fetus should be protected. 100%. But bringing in harsh abortion laws is not the way.

The way to do it is through education. Give women, all women the truth, the spiritual truth of what happens, what can happen when they do have abortions. And give men the truth about what happens to them when they continue to take the freedom, the rights away from women.

I mean, we live in this incarnation, this world where we walk around like fools and we just think we only have one incarnation. I mean, what fools are we to think this way? That we can do whatever we want to do and that's it. We get some high profile evangelist lie beside your bed, give you a piece of bread, whatever... and say, "Don't worry. God has forgiven you." Which is nonsense. You're still subject to the karmic laws and the matrix. This is a joke. This is why it's best, when you're in politics: don't do any harm. Because when you cross over, there's no one there to save you. Take this moment to help others. Take this moment to save this country, to save the world, to save other countries, to save women, to save the unborn fetus.

As we move to the fifth point... So, just North America, I checked the last 100 years. I wanted to know, "On average, why did women go through abortions?"

- Okay, the first reason: they were raped. Number one. And not all rapes are reported.
- The next reason: they were too young.
- The third: unprotected sex.
- The fourth: they weren't married.
- The fifth: they were forced to have the abortions. There are a lot of Catholic families that force their daughters to have abortions when they get pregnant. So, the church says, "Don't have abortions." But the religion says they encourage the parents to have the daughter have the abortion. How? Let me tell you how? Because the daughter has so much fear of going home and saying, "Dad, I'm pregnant." And through the whole belief system, they're so afraid, they go quietly and they have the abortion. And that's what they do to so many young Catholic girls. The church should give everyone the choice to choose, just like God gives the pope the choice to choose. What is the difference?

The sixth point... Women's consequences of having an abortion. Now, we're in the matrix. So, if you come from that other incarnation where you had 100% free will, which you have: this is where the debt is paid in this matrix. And some of the consequences is:

- One can come back to be aborted.
- They could come back to be forced to have an abortions, to go through what it's like.
- They could come back having some sort of cancer in their reproductive system.
- They can even come back as a doctor and perform abortions and be killed

There's so many possibilities. But this abortion issue causes so much grief, worldwide. If we would only, only understand that there are consequences for anyone to have an abortion.

But this whole issue of rape... The tougher the laws are against women on abortion: the increase of rapes that occur. These laws only attract the rapist. I will explain later.

So, the seventh point... If a woman has an abortion, can they offset this in another incarnation? Yes, you can. But keep in mind, everyone has nine chances to get it right. You have nine incarnations to get it right. And a lot of women, what they will do is, they will agree to come into another incarnation with that child. Now, that's a situation whereby maybe they were too young. It's a situation that did not incur being raped or abused.

In situations where they were raped, they're going to not want to come back with that child. Because once you understand this matrix: there is a fight between good and evil. This is for real. This is no joke. So, what happens is, the evil will actually use abortion laws to force women to give birth to their seed. And this is how they populate the world with their seed. But a woman who's just had a general abortion, had nothing to do with violence, rape: they can elect to have that child in another incarnation. But if they were violently treated, it's better for them to agree to come back and be a counsellor, for example, and counsel women who have been raped in subsequent incarnations. You can do it. But a lot of women don't understand this because you're told, "This is your only life."

So, I say to you: how can you reject the truth of man that knows every human being on this planet and knows their ancestors going back 10,000, 30,000 years ago? Who do you know that has this ability? Trust. I want to help you.

So, the eighth... What a woman needs to know, in reference to rape and abortion. A terrible thing. Right off the bat: forgive the rapist. Forgive them. You don't want to come back being married to them. Because that's usually what happens, in another incarnation. You need to forgive them completely. Forgive yourself. And the one that you aborted: just ask forgiveness out loud to the one that you have aborted. And denounce all oaths you have to religion. And denounce all oaths you may have to the rapist. It's very, very important. Again, you may want to listen to this segment three times. But there's a way out. There is a way out.

So, the ninth... Understand the seed of evil needs to be supported by tough abortion laws. Again, it's a fight between good and evil. And the primary way evil births evil is through rape. Women: fight for your rights. Tough abortion laws attract rapists to those countries to birth evil. And I thank God that the people of Ireland, the laws are starting to loosen up a little bit. But all you got to do is take a look at Ireland, and take a look at what the Catholic church has done to the Irish people, throughout their history. The rapes, the abuse, the hundreds of bodies that are in these pits that are found... You don't need to go further than Ireland. Now, Ireland is now starting to loosen up their laws. And I ask, in the name of God, that every, every country gives women the freedom to choose, with the understanding, the matrix understanding of the consequences. We must give them that information.

So, we're going to go to the next segment very shortly, after this break, "Skin Cancer." It's June the 3rd, 2018. My name is Bryan. And you are listening to Clarity Radio. Thank you.

("The Scientist" by Coldplay)

(Segment 3: Skin Cancer)

And we're back. Wow, I'm glad we got that one over with. Tough. It's tough. The reason why it's tough: it's truth. And truth cannot be always taken all in at one time. That's why you may have to listen to the broadcast three times. I can assure you, every time you listen to the broadcast: because it's so truthful, you're going to say, "I don't remember the first time Bryan saying this." And every time you listen to it, you're going to learn something new. Okay? It's because your brain is programmed only to receive certain levels and/or types of truth. That's why you need to just take it in slowly. That's why you may need to listen to it three times.

So, here we go. Segment 3: "Skin Cancer." So, let's talk about it. My name is Bryan. And yes, you know, it's still June 3rd, 2018. You know it's true because we're live. And it's Clarity Radio. So, here we go. Skin cancer: nine points...

Point number one... Three types of skin cancer. So, we've got melanoma, we've got basal cell and we've got squamous... So, these are skin cancers. So, here we go. The squamous... the squamous, eh? What a type of skin cancer. Ugly. It's a ugly looking thing. Basal cell... you know, it's a really... well, it can be ugly too. But melanoma can be really, really, really, really bad. So, squamous... They're trying to tell me how to say squamous... squamous... Just hang on for one second. Everyone's in the background, they're... Let me see this... I'm having some... Squamous... squamous... squamous... Squamous [squamous]... We'll go with that. Anyways so... Hey listen, my English is not so not so good but my brain is very good when it comes to science. So here we go. Thank God for that. So, let me... And that's the truth. You know, my wife makes fun of me. You would not... She's got a book of all these different things I say that I mess up. And I'm sure that one day, after I'm gone, that book's going to be sold and people are going to be... they're going to be saying, "Yeah, that's Bryan. That's Bryan." (laughs) "That's Bryan."

So, here we go. So, we've got melanoma. Well, it could be environmental, it could be genetic. But it's mostly genetic. Okay? That's what you're dealing with. Basal cell. This is sun exposure. And [squamous] is sun exposure again. And so, when we take a look at melanoma: it's about 75% of deaths, it's due to this type of cancer. Because it's a very, very unique type of cancer. Because it's genetic. It means that someone's passed it on to you, whether it's... Usually, the third generation. Usually... yeah... No, it could be the fourth too. Yeah, it could be any generation, I'm being told. It could be any generation. But the seed, the gene is transferred to you. So, I mean, you're dealing with something very different than from simple sun exposure or a chemical exposure. You're dealing with something very, very different. That's why most deaths are connected to melanoma. And the thing is, what I'm saying to you: what difference does it make? You know, so what? Basal cell: long term exposure. [Squamous]: African American. What difference that mostly it's African American? Or if you've got blonde hair. Or skin, fair skin. Red hair. You know, blue, green eyes. Who cares? Like, this is not going to help you. This is my whole point. So, let's get into it and let's just rip this thing apart. Here we go. That's what we got to do.

So, point number two... Let's look at the science that may be known or not known. Okay? So, we are going to talk about... Yes, those of you who have been listening to me in the past: I've been talking about gamma rays. Okay? So, here's the thing. I mean, the five key sources of cancer gamma rays that we're going to talk about... There's more than five. But I've only been told to talk about five today.

- So, we've got genetic from parents, ancestors. That's number one.
- Number two: it could come from a friend, a lover. It could come from a spouse.
- Number three: it could be self-inflicted. Okay? You're born with a gene and you just, for whatever reason, many reasons, you decide to give yourself cancer because you didn't forgive yourself based on what you did to someone else.
- The fourth: sun exposure.
- And the fifth could be general environmental issues.

Okay so, what we're looking at is, we can understand some of the sources of skin cancer.

But what we need to understand... number three... What is a gamma ray? Okay? So, very simply... And it's not so simple. It's simple for me because this is what I deal with every day, you know. So, the gamma rays is a fragment of nuclear energy, which bonds with certain distinct gases and other elements. Okay? So, it's energy. And this is something: this form of energy will house itself in our bone marrow. And so, when we talk about the gamma ray, it's this energy. And the main purpose of the gamma ray is to bring in cancer. So, if your body, if your physical body does not have a gamma ray active: it's not possible for you to get cancer. You need to have a active gamma ray in your body to get cancer. Even if you've got environmental whatever... You drank something and you got radiation poisoning: you're going to have... a gamma ray is going to be created in your bone marrow. Okay? And so, the gamma ray, what it does... is one of the main purposes... is to create, trigger what we call, neutrino activities within the cell. And once these neutrinos take place... well, you've now... you've got active cell cancer. It's active. So, someone could have a gamma ray in their bone marrow. It's just there. It's not doing anything. It's just sitting there. It could sit there for ten years. It doesn't matter; it's just sitting there. Then, one day, it acts up, interacts with certain cells and it basically triggers what we call neutrino activity. This is beyond, beyond, beyond what most oncologists is even aware of. Okay? I can tell you, most of them don't have a clue about what I'm talking about here. This is new information. And this information is going to help us, in the future, for me to work with other people to create technologies that's going to help people with cancer. But this is what we need to know today. And it's amazing.

So now, when we go to the fourth point... When we talk about cancer and we talk about pentaquarks. Now, I don't really understand all about pentaquarks. But I do have a good understanding about pentaquarks. But not all. So, the existence of which, in the universe, when it does exist is a bad sign. When there is an active pentaquark, it's not a good sign. And so, when we take a look at the pentaquark: these are...means atoms are breaking down, going into an altered state. It's doing something. And it's becoming dark matter. And so, when we take a look at dark matter in the universe: it's a garbage dumping ground for our universe. And I'm going to do a further program about this. But I don't want to focus on that. But what I do know is that, the pentaquarks: they create dark matter; they help create an altered state. And without the pentaquarks, without pentaquark activity: dark matter would not exist. All I'm just saying, that there's someone that needs to know this information. You need to know this information. So, let me get back to the cancer.

We're going to go to the fifth point... Getting back to cancer. And we're talking about, again, pentaquarks, the existence in the body. So here: when I see... when I discern that there is... And I do this privately. When I discern that there is an active pentaquark in the human body... And let's say, for example, the person has active cancer, being treated for active cancer: that person, in most cases, almost every case, will die within one year. As soon as that pentaquark is active, they will die.

Now, what is much more shocking to me: if I see someone has a active pentaquark in their physical body but they're not sick, they will likely die within one year. This is very shocking. This is something. This is something that is known to me. Just... It's new information. But yet, I'm going to have to sit down by myself for hours to try to understand, digest: why is this? What does it mean? "Geez, the person's not sick. They have an active pentaquark. And they're going to die within a year." Wow. Wow, this is crazy. And then, I ask the general question, "Why is this the case?" It's to facilitate all matrix experiences that is necessary for that one person to die within the year. It's almost like the body is pre-programmed, knowing when we are to die. But we consciously, we don't know when we're going to die. We really don't. But the body... There's a level of consciousness that's attached to our body that knows when we're going to die and knows how we are going to die.

And I ask people who meet me: please don't ask me to discern whether or not you have a active pentaquark. I'm not going to tell you. Don't... Please don't ask me if your elderly mother or father has an active pentaquark. I'm not going to give you that information. That information is not to be given to anyone. To have that information, it could be misused. So, I'm not going to give that information. Plus it can cause a lot of psychological imbalances. My God, what someone could go through if I said they had that, I don't even want to think about it. I don't even want to go there. But yet, people will come to me and ask me. And so, I'm just forewarning you: don't ask me the question. Don't ask me. Because my answer is not going to be a nice one. Okay? Let's go onto point number six.

Okay so, when we take a look at six, the sixth point... Now, this is something that's really fascinating when we're talking about cancer. And it's more to do with what we call now, yoctoradiation. Does it exist, yoctoradiation? We're talking 10^{-24} . And so, when we take a look at science, we take a look at physics: when you take a look at 10^{-36} , people think, "Well, nothing really exists beyond that." But yet, on 10^{-24} to the difference between 10^{-36} , I mean, it's very small percentage. But yet, yoctoradiation does exist. So, at this moment, there is no reliable equipment that can even test for yoctoradiation. So, this is the problem of individuals like myself talking about this topic. Because the radiation particles, if you want to call it particles... We'll call it particles for now, they can even exist at 10^{-36} , which science believes nothing exists beyond that. Okay so, 10^{-36} , a radiation particle can exist. So, this is why the docs will not support the idea of gamma rays. Because the gamma rays that we speak of is on a yocto level. And how do you test for it? How do you test for it? It's very, very difficult. And this is why the area of trying to understand cancer is so difficult: because we're dealing with particles that we really can't, on a collective basis in labs, test every day. But that's where we got to go. We have to go in that direction.

So, when we talk about skin cancer, this is the same thing. We're talking about the gamma rays in the bone marrow at such a small particle size that the docs will say, "There's nothing there." With all the tests, blood tests, urine test, everything: there's nothing there. X-rays, MRIs: nothing there. Okay? So, that's the problem with cancer today: because of the particles that are truly, truly triggering cancer in our body cannot be detected.

So, going onto the seventh point... The future treatment, research for cancer. So, what we need to know about the gamma rays. Okay? So, wow... So the gamma rays, in order to deal with these gamma rays... We're talking about cancer treatment. They need to be... What's the word? They need to be manipulated and become an altered state. That's what needs to be done. So, when we go back to pentaquarks technology, we need to look at this technology very wisely. Because if the technology is used wisely, it can help treat most cancers. But whenever we get to the level of going into a science that is very unique, we can take that technology... Instead of using it for good, we use it for bad. And this is the... my main concern. This is the main concern of the spiritual council: that man would take this technology and create these laser weapons, laser beams and just kill thousands, and thousands, and thousands of people on the front line very quickly. Or kill villages, kill cities very quickly. Instead of just using it to help man, you have people that have complete illogical behaviour, will use it for something else. They'll use it for something else. And this is the concern that I personally have in the field of science: that my gift is so unique that I can create global knowledge very quickly, but what people do with that global knowledge, this is frightening to me.

So, with the gamma rays, this technology... It could be a light beam. It could be a semi-laser beam. It could be something. And it would basically target the gamma rays and change their altered state... or rather, change their state to an altered state. But this is where we need to go, particularly when we're dealing with these genetic cancers. I mean, they're very difficult to treat. Particularly if someone's inherited a gene from parents, ancestors that said, basically, you're going to die. "I want you to..." A gene that says, "You must die of cancer. You must die of cancer." There is no treatment. There is absolutely no treatment that they can receive that will save that person's life. It's not possible. So, by way of educating myself about how we do get cancer and we take that information into our next new 100% free will universe experience: we take that knowledge and we change our behaviour. So, when we do come into the matrix, it's not so bad.

So, the eighth... Chemical treatment for environmental cancers. So, it's not easy. I have discerned a general... It's a general compound for the treatment of environmental, non-genetic cancers. And I know that this chemical compound will be able to neutralize gamma ray activity. I say, neutralize. Doesn't mean it's actually going to change it into an altered state. And even when I say, neutralize, I don't exactly understand what I'm talking about because I haven't given enough time to think about this. But one thing I do know is that the synthesis of the chemical compound will be very unique. It is very unique. Not it will be. It is. And it will go against the beliefs of most chemists. I know that. I absolutely know that.

But when you're dealing with skin cancer, for example, what you really need to do is to go to the beach, go wherever you're going to go: you've got to be protected. Wear the appropriate clothing. Florida: it took... I went to the beach intentionally to get a bad sunburn. This was... And I don't recommend anyone do this. It took about an hour-and-a-half. I got a bad sunburn. You're going to see the video. I'm going to put it up later on this week. It was a bad one. And so, I used the burn gel. And that... it saved me. I mean, that burn gel saved me from that bad burn. But I don't highly recommend it. But what I did understand very quickly: how quick your skin can burn... very quickly in those conditions. And so, if you have this condition on an on-going basis, you can end up with a form of skin cancer. Or you can just have one intense burn.

But what was really interesting is that I was discerning the sun, the UV, etc. And so, I wanted to know: why is it, if everyone has the same exposure to the sun, why is it we all don't get cancer? And so, it was very interesting. I discern that the sun, when I was on the beach, was only targeting four people that day on the beach for skin cancer. But there were a lot of people. So, there's something about this matrix that the sun will actually come together with certain people and they will get skin cancer.

So, as I move to the ninth point... What I realize is that cancer is a big problem in Florida. It's a big problem. Really, really, really big problem. And what I recognize is that the problem is going to get worse. It's going to get worse. The sun's going to get more intense. The environmental layer of protection around the planet: it's going to get weaker. And in the restaurants, when I was talking to other people or listening to other conversations intentionally: every restaurant we went to, there was always somebody beside me, another table talking about someone with cancer or going through cancer treatment. And I found that to be shocking. And this is one of the reasons why I'm determined to come up with a effective treatment for cancer. Effective. To be used worldwide. But I know it's going to take years. Clinical trial, etc., etc. I know that. But I'm going to try my best to make it happen.

But you, when you go outside in the sun, protect yourself. You have to protect yourself. And even if you go to the beach and you wear a t-shirt in the water: wear the t-shirt. And remember: when you go to the beach, the ocean, the primary reason why you go there, besides being attacked by grouper, is to detox. And don't go early in the morning like I did. Because the sharks feed around that time too. So, go around... just after 9:00. And go when the water is nice and clear, that you can see it. And just be careful. Because I was 25 feet from the shoreline in less than four feet of water. And I almost got attacked. And the whole day, my fingers... I was nervous. I was on the edge.

And I remember having my hair done in the Aveda School in Clearwater. And the nice young woman that was cutting my hair... And this was a school. It felt like a hospital because I had some specialist that was examining my head and giving the stylist some instructions. And I actually thought for a moment I was going in for surgery. Then I woke up and I realized that this was not a hospital; it was a school where my hair would get cut. So, I was relieved to observe the fact that I woke up. So anyways... So, having said that, she was a little, small thing. I told her the story about the grouper. And I said, "You know what? Here's the deal with the grouper: eight feet, big mouth, was looking for breakfast. You look at the size of me: I'm dinner, I'm supper to this big fish. So, there's... I was lucky, very lucky I was a big person. But you, on the other hand, you're small. You're thin, you're skinny: you would be the perfect appetizer for grouper." And she laughed. We both laughed. But I mean, that's the reality. Because maybe if I was a kid... What I'm trying to say, if I was a kid, maybe I would not be so lucky.

So anyways, we're going to go to break. And we're going to the fourth segment, "A New Message to Our Canadian Parliament." Thank you. My name is Bryan. It is June the 3rd, 2018. You are listening to Clarity Radio. Thank you.
